Indian social responsibility network (ISRN) a division of Ministry of culture of Government of India. They have undertaken an intensive study to collect as many stories as possible of organizations/ individuals who are putting their heart and soul to make a difference in the society by working towards the upliftment of the deprived sections. ISRN have identified 927 practices (NGO), documented, analyzed and selected 408 nos. of best practices and compiled the Antyodaya based best practices in the form of a report in the form of a book named "A Vision of Antyodaya" and published by Ministry of Culture, Government of India. These best practices will be disseminated widely through regional workshops among NGOs, donors, government, corporate. The motive is to highlight the best practices adopted by such unsung heroes and document them for future replication; ISRN is set on the path to give recognition to those serving the un-served.

Ananda Marga Pracharak Sangh has been selected as best practitioner (NGO) for Education by Indian social responsibility network (ISRN) and they had invited us and the Rector Master, Acarya Narayanananda Avadhuta had attended in a function at New Delhi on 12th February where hon'ble Vice President Shri M. Venkaiah Naidu unvelled a book named A Vision of Antyodaya at New Delhi in his house.

This book has several best practices which have been selected through several rounds of screening and our practice is also one of the story featured in the book (page 188 Volume 1). This is a moment to cherish as our practice is getting recognized at national level
